

CHILHOWEE RESERVOIR

CHEROKEE NATIONAL FOREST
POLK COUNTY, TENNESSEE

Deep in the Cherokee National Forest outside of Knoxville, Tennessee sits the Chilhowee Recreation Area. This location offers a serene spot for camping, boating, and relaxation overlooking the Smoky Mountains for millions of guests annually. To provide a great experience for campers and visitors, the Chilhowee Recreation Area realized they needed to update their current potable water storage and waterlines. The area was using century-old concrete water storage tanks, the need for repair and the upgrade was inevitable.

The answer: Tanks Direct delivered and installed one 25,000-gallon ZCL | Xerxes underground fiberglass potable water storage tank. In choosing a ZCL | Xerxes tank, the Chilhowee Recreation Area received all the core benefits of a fiberglass tank which includes lightweight, corrosion resistant, and structural strength that is out of sight from unsuspecting visitors. This update in potable water storage and waterlines will serve this area and their visitors for many years to come.
